

Simple reasoning for no more tapping requirements/laws..
VOIP or Internet.. The government is run by normal people hired like a normal employee. Until everyone wants to allow everyone to hear and see all details of their life, the government should not make it a legal requirement. This nation already has too many unmonitored monitors. This would allow identifying data to pass into too many hands to keep it usable as "identifying data" since it will be in too many hands. By "identifying data" I mean credit cards, Social Security numbers, names, addresses, account numbers, policies and more.

If for no other reason, this ability is nothing more than a weapon of mass distruction. If it is used, it will take out as many innocents as non-innocent parties, just like other weapons.
